Pearl River County deputy shot in murderous rampage

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER
A Pearl River County Deputy and a tax commission officer in Alabama were shot and killed by a renegade gunman who also shot an innocent woman at a McDonald's drive-through yesterday.

Deputy Len Rowell, 24, of Poplarville was apparently shot and killed at approximately 3:45 a.m. on I-59 in Poplarville by Jimmy Earl Whitt, 23, of Greenville, Ala.

Whitt is suspected in the killing of Rowell, Greenville police officer Gary Wayne Heath and Alabama Public Service Commission enforcement officer Coy N. Smith.

He is also believed to have killed a female convenience store clerk on June 14 and to have shot Donna Akers of Memphis, Tenn. in Foley, Ala. who was waiting in a drive-through with her two children.

Rowell had apparently been making a traffic stop when he was killed.

"Apparently when Rowell got out of the car, he started shooting and didn't stop. It then appears that he was followed to the patrol car and unloaded what was left in the gun," Pearl River County Sheriff Danny McNeill said.

McNeill added that Rowell had been wearing a bullet proof vest at the time of the shooting.

Following the shooting of Rowell, Whitt went to Alabama, committed another murder and attempted one before he then turned the gun on himself, smiled and took his own life, McNeill said.

"According to the reports that we received, when the F.B.I. agents pulled next to him, he just smiled and pulled the trigger," McNeill said.

One victim of Whitt's murderous rampage is still fighting for her life.

Lt. Jerry Spence, with the Pearl River County Sheriff's Department, said Wednesday that there were two eye witnesses at the scene of Aker's shooting and that she was flown to Pensacola, Fla., for surgery.

Signs on beach warn of danger

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER
Some people may have noticed that, along with the new sand on the beach, there are a few new signs, too. No swimming signs that is, warning of deep water, where sand was dredged up to make the new beach.

The signs were mandated by the Corps of Engineers before a permit would be given to the county to dredge for the much needed sand.

"The Corps of Engineers was going to make us go into Pass Christian to get the sand that we needed to replenish our beaches. We found a good sand source here that saved us a lot of money because we would have had to pump the sand from Pass Christian, but one of the requirements from the corps was for us to put in no swimming signs where we dredged," Chancery Clerk Michael

Suit involves Galaxy Casino

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER
A Bay St. Louis couple has filed a lawsuit against Galaxy Casino and Lucien Gex for breach of contract and resulting damages concerning the sale of their property to the casino.

James A. Maness Sr. and his wife, Phyllis, have filed a lawsuit in the Hancock County Circuit Court for a total of $284,153.82, plus attorney fees. Gex is being sued for $10,000 of the total amount that, according to the suit filed by the Manesses, should have been given to them when the property closing did not occur.

Gex, the attorney representing Galaxy Casino, was to establish an escrow account in which the money was to be placed, which would either go towards the purchase price at the closing, or if the closing did not go through, would be returned over to the Manesses, according to the suit.

Defendant in the suit, Alvin R. Perry, 21616 Cezanne Place, Woodland Hills, Calif., was the person who negotiated for the sale of the trailer park owned by the Manesses.

Crab fest begins Friday

BY CHARLEE MARSHALL

The annual Crab Festival, sponsored by Our Lady of the Gulf Church on Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis, has grown to be an all-out "community affair" said Bill LeBlanc, who is overseeing the event for the fifth time in a row.

The festival, running Friday, July 1 through Monday, July 4 will be celebrated for the tenth time this year and is a true "family affair." Much of it is under shade trees and is cooled by Gulf breezes but tents and pavilions are set up to help shield everyone from the hot sun or possible rain showers.

The volunteers who work on festival activities get a "special kind of satisfaction" in working to make it successful, LeBlanc said.

It "got started because of local foods unique to the area," he explained.

Families noted for their expertise in preparing certain foods form the basic foundation for the yearly celebration. Crab specialties and seafood of all kinds are the featured fare. Cajun, Oriental and Mexican food will be available to satisfy almost any taste and for those who prefer good old American style hot dogs, hamburgers and barbecue, there will be plenty of those foods available, too.

Sweet treats will include cotton candy, ice cream, snowballs and cooling soft drinks.

The crab fest offers much more than good food. There will be a fun run sponsored by the Gulf Coast Running Club, a large arts and crafts exhibit, live musical entertainment, various games and rides, raffles and an exciting $15,000 draw-down. Its White Elephant sale attracts lots of buyers, too, LeBlanc said.

Over 75 booths of arts and crafts have been reserved. Many exhibitors return each year and are favorites of the shoppers. Sponsors have worked to make the entire function a quality affair, even to screening the handicrafts to make sure they are top-notch, LeBlanc said.

This year, the festival is introducing several carnival style kiddie rides to keep the children and teens occupied, LeBlanc said.

Fireworks have been a tradition at the Crab Festival, but organizers have chosen to do away with them because of the liability, LeBlanc said. A pier that was used to shoot them off in the past is no longer available and the people who donate their time to help do not want to be responsible for injuries or damages that might lead to possible lawsuits, LeBlanc said.

Henderson Point citizens want final kill on casino

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Citizens from the Henderson Point area hope today they can drive a lethal spike in the heart of plans for a casino in their vicinity -- any casino, anytime.

"We're ready to put this sucker to bed," said Nonnie DeBardeleben, chairman of the Concerned Citizens to Protect the Isles and Point.

If the group's phone bank works as expected, a number of the members will show up at this morning's Gaming Commission meeting in Biloxi, where the issue of a casino at Henderson Point is up for discussion.

Until earlier this week, the commission had planned to rule on the legality of a specific gaming site where Spectrum Gaming had proposed a $25 million facility; just south of the Highway 90 bridge in Harrison County.

Spectrum withdrew their application with less than a week to go before the commission's meeting, however.

Spectrum attorney Gerald Blessey said Wednesday that the casino developers backed away from the project after consulting with Gaming Commission director Paul Harvey. "Spectrum thought that it would be wiser to withdraw the application and concentrate on other sites," said Blessey.

Spectrum is "trying to be sensitive to the community and to the Gaming Commission's opinion

City seawall extension to be studied

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Federal officials plan to study building some type of seawall structure to protect the exposed, eroding shoreline between Bay View Court and the Highway 90 bridge.

Johnny L. Grandison, study manager in the Corps of Engineers' Mobile District, said Tuesday the Corps has agreed to do the study, based on a June 6 request from the city of Bay St. Louis.

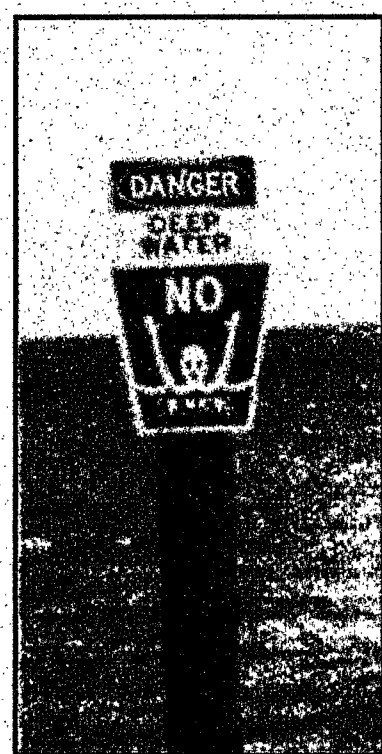

An initial assessment of the idea has found such a project meets federal requirements for Corps' assistance, Grandison said.

The area at issue is eroding at a rate of about 10 feet per year. What's being lost to ero-

In Memoriam

In Loving Memory of
MIKE AUPIED
Sept. 26, 1963-June 29, 1993
One year ago today we knew we would miss you.

We just didn't know it would be this much.

One million times we have missed you.

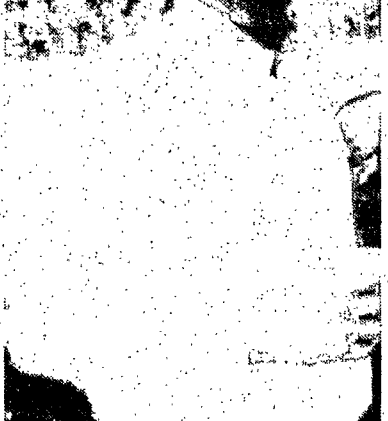

One million times we have cried.

If love could have saved you, You would have never died.

A heart of gold stopped beating,
Two green eyes closed to rest.
God breaks our heart to prove to us
He only takes the best.

You are always in our heart and on our mind.

Sadly missed and loved by your Girlfriend, Son and Family

Rest Peacefully, Mike

Rest peacefully now my precious sweetheart.

It's hard to believe your life is done.

I'm thankful for all the years I had with you.

It saddens my heart to think of you being gone.

I miss you so much.

I feel alone, and the days linger on.

But it's at night when I miss you the most.

Part of you is still in our home.

At times it's hard to think you're gone.

I leave your clothes untouched.

Oh, my sweetheart, I miss you so much.

Sadly missed and loved by your Girlfriend and Son of the site," Blessey said.

Ironically, Gaming Commission staffers were of the opinion that the Spectrum site is a legal one, under the state's gaming laws. But with the high volume of opposition to it, and its proximity to Gulfshore Baptist Assembly, the Spectrum operation would have been opposed by the staff, said Harvey's assistant, Chuck Patton.
"I think it's clearly a legal site," said Patton. But rather than let Spectrum pass through the site approval process, build a facility and fail to win an operating license, the commission staff wanted the casino controversy debated and decided, Patton said. "They need to know early on, before they build a casino."

Blessey said Spectrum won't be at today's meeting, because its application has been withdrawn. A $5,000 non-refundable application fee went down the tubes with it.

DeBardeleben said her group will be on hand to make their full presentation to the commission, despite the developments.

Opponents to the project began organizing about two years ago, when word first circulated that property at Henderson Point was being assembled for a casino.

Some 1,000 opponents jammed into a public hearing last fall, far outnumbering supporters of the project. The casino had the backing of the Pass Christian Public School District, which was told it could expect over $2 million per year in gaming revenues.

Strong public opposition, however, led the Harrison County Board of Supervisors to go on record in opposition.

Patton said although Spectrum has withdrawn its application, the staff will ask the commission today to make a policy statement on the suitability of putting any casino at Henderson Point.

And while DeBardeleben's group will be allowed to make its presentation, said Patton, "They'll be preaching to the choir."

Patton said without a policy statement from the commission concerning Henderson Point, other developers probably would come forward with new plans for a casino in that area. LLL Properties, Inc., owns the 13-acre site where Spectrum had proposed to locate.

The Gaming Commission meets at 9 a.m. today at the Treasure Bay Hotel in Biloxi.

sion right now is privately-owned property, between North Beach Boulevard and the waterfront. Some trees already have toppled, as the shoreline disappears.

The rampant erosion has left the Corps and city officials worried that Beach Boulevard is in jeopardy. "Everybody in the world will agree about the erosion -- the question is how fast," said Grandison. One massive storm, he said, could cut out the remaining property and take the highway at the same time.

Since the roadway is public property, its jeopardy puts the erosion problem in the public domain, officials say.

Last January, property owners along the stretch at issue asked City Council and the Board of Supervisors to endorse the idea of a private renourishment of the waterfront, to block additional erosion.

The property owners at one point offered to pay their share of the costs of having a sand beach pumped along the area. They later withdrew that offer, however, when they learned that the new beach would be considered public property.

But city officials plan to include the area in a beach renourishment program, even without assistance from the private property owners, creating a new beachfront accessible to the public.

The city renourishment program extends some 5,000 feet between the Highway 90 bridge and Booker Street. Officials expect to have the project out for bids in about a month, if samples from a proposed sand source are acceptable for a Corps permit. Officials already have decided the sandbar they'd like to use has enough sand, of the right consistency, for the project.

The sand currently is being tested to see if it contains any toxics which would rule out its use as public beach material.

Meanwhile, Grandison said the Corps' construction project could proceed regardless of the city renourishment program -- if there's beachfront in place, the Corps simply would build its structure and put the beach back in place.

"We don't look at beaches as permanent structures anywhere on the Gulf Coast," said Grandison. "In time, it's going to go. It's gone in the past."

He said the upcoming study will consider several alternative construction plans -- the city will have the option of selecting which, if any, to endorse. While the study is 100 percent financed by the federal government, the city would have to foot 25 percent of the construction cost tab.

The Corps already is planning to bolster shoreline protection significantly along the city's section of existing seawall, and another stretch in the Waveland area.

Those plans call for building a 1,000-foot revetment from Bay View, south to the Ulman Street pier area. A second new revetment stretch in the upcoming program will be built along about 1,500 feet, between Market and Favre streets in the Waveland area.

Construction on those two projects is expected to begin soon.

Necaise said.

Necaise said that the slope of the decline in sand is a gradual one and not a sudden, steep drop.

"It was very expensive to have had to put the signs in and it will be expensive to maintain them, but we had no choice," Necaise added.

The signs will cost an estimated $51,456.82 when all 95 signs required are in place, Bill Mitchell, with Brown and Mitchell Engineering, said.

The no swimming signs run from Ramaneda Street to Whispering Pines Drive, for approximately 4,500 feet, Mitchell said.

The signs are equipped with reflective strips so that they can be seen at night, but some will also have lights on them so that boaters will more easily be able to distinguish them at night, if they have no lights on their boats.

"We are trying to prevent any possible accidents that could occur," Mitchell said.

CUEVAS QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Roll up your sleeves for this long July Fourth weekend, as there are many activities and things to do. Too bad we couldn't spread some out over other weekends.

The 10th annual Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church's Crab Festival runs July 1 through July 4. The Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, billed as the "World's Largest Fishing Rodeo" is set for July 1-4 in Gulfport at the Rice Pavilion.

St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church's Annual Fair Extravaganza will run July 1 through July 3.

Saturday is a real busy day as there will be three additional events.

At noon the annual Garden Isle boat parade is scheduled.

1 p.m. marks the annual Clermont Harbor parade, sponsored by the Old Forest Marching Club.

Then at 2 p.m., the annual Jourdan River Shores boat parade is scheduled.

It will be parade time in Diamondhead on Monday, July 4 at 10 a.m. for that community's annual event.

As you can see, there is a wide variety of activities this long weekend.

One can enjoy fishing, eating, boating, eating, floats, eating, etc.

The Deep Sea Rodeo's official waters are the Mississippi Sound and the Gulf of Mexico for saltwater. Freshwater fishing is anywhere in the bays, bayous, rivers, creeks and lakes with 200 miles of the Mississippi shoreline.

This is a free rodeo, all is needed is to be pre-registered.

The Rice Pavilion is the rodeo's headquarters. Even if you do not fish, you may just want to visit the rodeo and check out the big winners.

There are numerous awards in both saltwater and freshwater categories.

Fishing starts any time after 12:01 the morning of July 1 and ends at 4 p.m. on July 4. All fish must be checked in daily before 8 p.m. and before 4 p.m. on July 4.

I wish all fishermen the best of luck. The OLG Crab Festival has so much to offer, from boiled crabs, to Mr. Gene Monti's Cotton Candy.

Activities begin on Friday at 5 p.m. for the Crab Festival and 11 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

St. Rose de Lima's Annual Fair Extravaganza will offer shrimp, stuffed crabs, fish, gumbo, fried chicken and barbecued ribs Friday, Saturday and Sunday beginning at 11 a.m.

Games and booths will open at 5:30 p.m. each day. OLG Crab Fest and St. Rose Fair will both offer live entertainment during their celebrations.

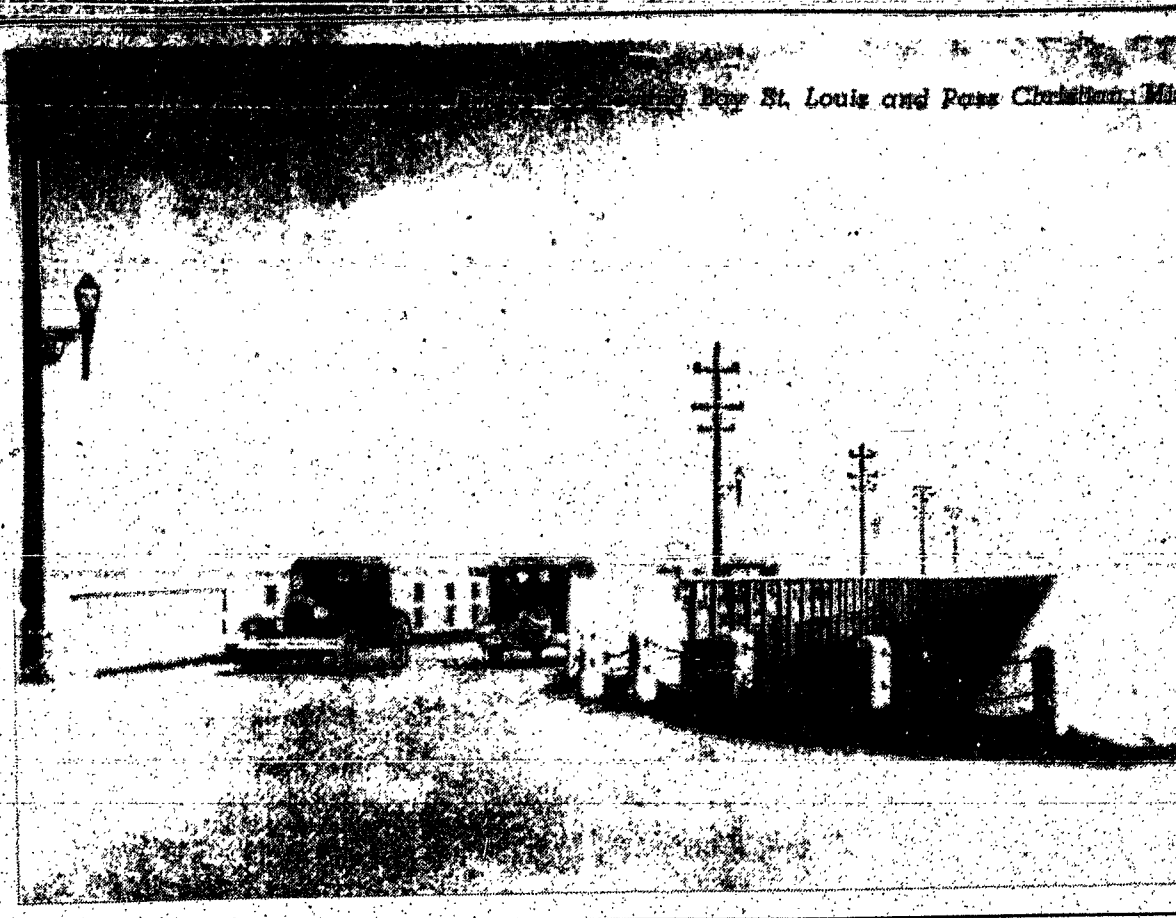

The residents of Jourdan River Shores and Garden Island pride themselves with their respective boat parades each year.

Boats of all sizes will be decorated and vying for trophies.

I understand there will be a red, white and blue convertible in the Diamondhead parade. A better explanation was later given as there would be three convertibles, one red, one white and one blue. That "wisdom of the year" came from Jon Ritten, president of the Diamondhead Business & Professional Association.

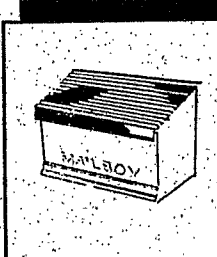

Whatever you do, or wherever you go this long weekend, I am hoping you will have a very safe holiday.

Please remember, do not drink and drive.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Reader feels objective reporting is needed

To the Editor:
The Sea Coast Echo might note nobody's perfect.

Maybe we could use a little positive Waveland spoken here.

It's frequently said it takes two to tango. Ergo, one individual constantly grandstanding does not a squabble make.

More objective reporting might present a more balanced view but sell fewer papers.

More drug policy disarray

Over the past several years, the United States has shared information on drug-trafficking flights with Peru and Colombia to help their governments interdict large drug shipments destined for American streets.

The Pentagon has spent millions of dollars on a sophisticated drug intelligence network of military radar and spy planes. The idea has been to pinpoint where airborne drug traffickers took off and landed and combine that information with other intelligence in order to mount ground attacks on drug labs and storage facilities.

President Bush persuaded the leaders of Colombia and Peru that their inclusion in the U.S. radar link was vital to them and to the wider drug tracking network connecting South America, Central America and the Caribbean.

The importance of tracking the small aircraft is universally accepted. Cocoa leaf grown in Bolivia and Peru must move northward for processing in successive stages to cocaine paste, cocaine base and, in Colombia, the pure street drug.

U.S. intelligence officials believe nearly 1,000 flights a year head north carrying some form of cocaine or heroin.

Data on the drug flights' origin and destination has set the stage for raids on drug labs and storage facilities that netted about 300 metric tons of illegal drugs last year. Those are drugs which would have found their way onto American streets.

But our interdiction progress is to be shortlived. In an abrupt move last month, the Clinton Administration halted the radar flights over Peru and Colombia on the advice of its civilian Pentagon lawyers.

The Pentagon has convinced the President that there is a potential for lawsuits in the event that Colombian or Peruvian air forces, using intelligence information provided by the United States, shoot down aircraft.

The Pentagon's opinion is eerily similar to those court actions brought by the ACLU which permit burglars to sue homeowners if the intruders are injured while in the process of pillaging a home.

The governments of Colombia and Peru have protested the President's halting the flights, and his own State Department has argued that stopping this intelligence gathering is a blow to efforts to halt the flow of drugs to the U.S.

Reportedly the White House, in an attempt to pacify its Pentagon civilians and the State Department, has told the Colombian and Peruvian governments it will restore the radar link if the two countries will promise not to shoot down any planes.

Such a commitment would certainly be welcome news to smugglers who could fly their drugs without fear of harm or threat.

Interestingly enough, the White House drug czar's office, which was created to oversee drug policy and resolve this kind of situation, is silent.

But, then, last year President Clinton cut that office staff by more than 80 percent in order to fulfill a pledge to make an overall reduction in White House personnel.

Last November he announced he would begin scaling back the use of aircraft and naval ships for drug interdiction in the Caribbean as part of a projected $200 million reduction in the Pentagon's counter-narcotics program.

That policy was a marked shift in the military's anti-drug role from four years ago when President Bush for the first time used military resources against the international drug trade.

Those current Administration officials whose job it is to carry out our drug interdiction policy are mired in civil legalities and are spending precious little time and resources in fighting drug traffickers.

Gov. Fordice off to big-game hunting

While the state is in danger of being fined $500,000 a day for prison overcrowding, Gov. Fordice is off big-game hunting in Africa most of the month of July.

But you would have never known it if you had to depend on the governor's office to inform the state.

Actually, Fordice left Monday en route to Tanzania, on the East Coast of the "dark continent" and is supposed to be 28 days in the bush on safari. Nary a word was heard from Fordice's information people where he was off to.

Even as late as last Friday when the Clarion-Ledger, the state's largest newspaper, inquired of Johnna Van, the governor's communications director, if Fordice was leaving on a hunting trip to Africa, would she confirm where he was going, when he would be leaving, what he would be doing and how long he would be gone.

It happened that this reporter had pretty much found out most of key facts on the Fordice African big-game hunting trip several days before, and with whom he would be going. (Not Mrs. Fordice incidentally.)

His hunting companion, I learned, would be Pat Taylor, the wealthy New Orleans oil man (and heavy contributor to the Republican Party) who lives most of the time on a large ranch with exotic live game roaming around, in Marion County, near Columbia.

Taylor, an avid big-game hunter, and Fordice apparently had struck up a pretty good acquaintanceship through GOP circles, and he knew Fordice had made a safari to Africa several years ago.

In any case, by last weekend when I learned Clarion-Ledger capital reporter Emily Wagster was frustrated that she couldn't get anything substantive out of Fordice for a story, I told her about Taylor going with Fordice on the African adventure, and a few other things I had picked up on their plans.

As a result, Wagster managed to get hold of Taylor, and he was very forthcoming about the whole hunting trip, in contrast to what the Fordice people had been, and the C-L was able to have a Sunday story letting the folks know their governor was off to Africa to hunt big game.

As I had been told by other sources, Taylor confirmed that both he and Fordice would pay their own way. Wives not included.

Taylor is noted for cultivating friends in high places. He was very close to former President Bush, friends say. And while he is a heavy hitter in the GOP league, Taylor also has influential contacts among some big Democrats, among them Gov. Edwin Edwards of Louisiana.

A few weeks ago, Taylor had a dinner party at his ranch for Edwards and invited some friends in the Columbia area to join him. Out of that occasion came a vintage Edwards quip about the differences between him and Fordice.

Said Edwards to the Mississippians: "The difference between me and your governor is I can't hold on to a wife (this was shortly before he recently took a 29-year-old bride), and your governor can't get rid of his."

Some believe Taylor may try to convince Fordice on their safari to push what has been billed as the "Taylor plan" for the state to guarantee college scholarships for economically deprived, but promising, high school students if they set and maintain certain academic goals.

Taylor has been able to get Louisiana to partially adopt the plan. He presented his ideas to a Mississippi legislative committee a couple years ago, but elicited little enthusiasm.

Fordice will be out of the state until the end of July, only two weeks before his announced special session of the Legislature to deal with prison overcrowding and revive the state Department of Human Services which the 1994 legislative session allowed to "sunset" on June 30.

Poetically, Fordice will be going from Mississippi where he has just decreed his pet slogan, "Only positive Mississippi spoken here," plastered on highways leading into the state, to a land where the deer and antelope play.

Who knows, he might not hear a discouraging word all day.

EIGHT WAYS

Child care expert Joan M. Bergstrom, author of "The Summer," tells us eight creative ways to entertain the kids when summer boredom sets in.

1. Have kids set up a fancy restaurant at home, creating place mats and menus, and serving dinner for mom and dad.

2. Take an excursion to someplace unusual, such as a wildlife preserve, farm, fish hatchery, news paper office or the state capitol.

3. Turn the back yard into a playground complete with frisks, hoola hoops and jump ropes, or set up a tent and toast marshmallows for an outdoor adventure.

4. Have the kids create their own personal calendar for upcoming school and fall activities, using stickers to highlight special days.

5. Pick up a book on magic tricks, cartooning or animation, and have your child give a presentation to family and friends.

6. Set up an "invention" area in the den with blocks, pulleys and clay, and see what the kids create.

7. Have your child start a collection of coins, stamps, rocks, shells, baseball cards and keep in a special album or box. They can also keep busy putting all those photos in albums.

8. Have the kids create a dance to their favorite song, and perform it for family and friends.

THOUGHTS TO SHARE

There is a fountain of youth: It is your mind, your talents, the creativity you bring in your life, and the lives of people you love.

Always — love one another. Remember the good ole USA, and have a safe and happy 4th.

Alcohol, boating a deadly combination

As many as 60 people will die in boating accidents on the Fourth of July and tragically, at least half of the deaths will be alcohol-related, according to 500,000-member BOAT/US (Boat Owners Association of The United States), the nation's largest organization of recreational boaters.

Drinking and boating is a serious safety issue any day of the week, but the problem is magnified many times on July 4th because the holiday is traditionally a festive occasion.

"Alcohol abuse contributes to more boating fatalities on July 4th than on any other day of the year," said BOAT/US. President Richard Schwartz.

He urged boat owners to appoint a "designated skipper" who will take a holiday from consuming alcohol and to keep a watchful eye on passengers. A boat passenger who has had too much to drink is also at serious risk of falling overboard and drowning.

Boating while intoxicated (BWI) is not only dangerous, but illegal. The U.S. Coast Guard enforces federal law, which sets a blood alcohol level of .10 percent as legal intoxication.

A boat operator with a blood alcohol concentration above .10 is more than ten times likely to be killed in a boating accident than a boater with zero blood alcohol concentration. Violators face a civil penalty of up to $1,000 or a criminal fine up to $5,000 and a year in jail.

Forty-two states and the District of Columbia also have BWI laws which are enforced by the marine police as well as state and local police departments.

Six of these states — California, Florida, Maine, Oregon, Utah and Virginia — have recently toughened their BWI laws by lowering the blood alcohol level for legal intoxication from .10 to 0.8.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

It's time to go fishin' y'all. Most folks had a real tough time catching the species which was most abundant over the past week. The main problem is they were using the wrong size of hook.

A 5/0 hook is just too big for this species. You gotta have the same size hook you use for gnats if you wanna catch a rain drop.

Funny though, nobody has figured out how to filet a rain drop. So, I guess they must not be really good to eat.

Maybe it is because they have no nutritional value. Although that would make them a good item for dieters.

The rain really messed up the fishin' this past week, but a few brave souls did manage to get out to the fishin' spots between rain squalls. One of the brave ones was John Necaise, who lives in the Spanish Acres area of Bay St. Louis.

John used a yellow and grey Rattle & Rouge to catch a one and one-half pound Pike in the Jourdan River.

John was fishing for huge-mouth bass when he caught the pike. As the fishin' buddies know, pike are quite rare this far south. Maybe this fish decided to leave Yankee land to check out the big barges with all of the lights that are on our Gulf shoreline. Anyway, jolly good show, John.

Now for the next item on the agenda for this week: One sports writer went on a diatribe about a statement made at the red fish hearing last week about kids catching 16-inch red fish.

It seems that writer awarded the grand prize for the "this makes no sense award" to the person who said, "How are you going to tell a child who has just caught a 16-inch red fish that he has to throw it back?"

He pointed out that if you don't tell the child to throw the 16-inch fish back that you will have a criminal on your hands. The child will destroy other people's property, he will cheat, lie and steal for the rest of his life. Good heavens!

Well, fishin' buddies, I plead guilty to taking sides with the young fishermen. You see a lot of young people fish in Hancock County.

Some come from different states. Alabama and Louisiana have a 16-inch red fish size limit. This means a child has a problem understanding the confusion that exists between the laws of Mississippi and other states.

Heck, most of us adults are confused at one time or another. This does not mean it is okay to disobey the law. All it means is that it is hard to explain why there is so great a difference between the laws.

This is especially true since the average red fish does not know what state he is in at the time he is caught.

There is a body of scientific evidence which indicates the 16-inch size limits on red fish is not having a negative impact on the resource in the states on each side of Mississippi. This makes the explanation on the size limit differential even more difficult to explain, especially to a child.

The next thing that should be considered is whenever there is a total misconception as to the reason for a specific law, and if the law is perceived to be irrational, folks in the real world have a tendency to ignore the law.

Filet of rain drops and other stuff

This does not make the breaking of the law right. On the contrary, you should always obey the law. If you don't think the law is reasonable you should work to change the law. But, for the regulatory agencies to ignore the perceptions of the public is a recipe for disaster.

Just a few more things about the red fish hearing and then onward. There is a word that comes up continually concerning red fish that needs to be clarified.

The word is escapement rate. Escapement rate is based on a mathematical ratio of how many fish of a yearly cohort would leave to go offshore to the spawning schools if there were no fishing pressure versus how many would escape with fishing pressure.

The Louisiana DW&F makes a report to their legislature each year. Last year their escapement rate with the 16-inch size limit was 69 percent. The federal government requires an escapement rate of between 20 and 40 percent.

There is another body of scientific evidence that concludes the red fish leave inshore waters when they are about 18 inches in length. This means the current size limit denies the red fish resource to the fishermen who cannot go offshore.

It should be noted that there are a few stray reds who, for whatever reason, stay close to shore and are caught. The bulk of the red fish move offshore when they reach 18 inches. Setting the size limit at 18 inches would still deny the resource to the average person.

Notice to all fishermen: The EPA has proposed a ban on most lead sinkers. The ban, if approved, will ban the manufacture, sale and distribution of nearly all sinkers currently used by recreational fishermen. This includes the home production of sinkers.

Even though it is unknown how much of a hazard lead sinkers pose to wildlife across the U.S., the Environmental Defense Fund filed a civil lawsuit to require the EPA to ban the sinkers.

It seems a 1992 petition from the Environmental Defense Fund indicated a few water birds were dying from the ingestion of lead sinkers — somewhere.

You might want to consult your senators and congressmen if you have an opinion on the proposed ban.

Last call — last call — the Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo will start this weekend at the Rice Pavilion in Gulfport. Y'all come now.

This week's wonderful wise words: Don't use lead sinkers as bird bait.

Is cohort the same as cohorts, Turtle?

Governor buys first license

Anyone wishing to fish and hunt in Mississippi will now have the easiest access in the country to buying licenses.

Gov. Kirk Fordice purchased the very first Mississippi sportsman license via a new state-of-the-art automated license system.

The system is the first and only one of its kind in the nation.

"By implementing this system Mississippi is taking a lead the rest of the country will soon follow," Fordice said.

"Sportsmen across Mississippi and the nation can now purchase a fishing or hunting license by simply picking up the telephone. It is an accomplishment that the folks at the Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks (MDWFP) and the people of Mississippi can truly be proud of."

For the past several months officials at the MDWFP have been working feverishly to get the system on line.

"This new system will have as much impact on the sportsmen who fish and hunt in Mississippi as anything else this department has ever accomplished," said Dr. Sam Polles, MDWFP executive director.

"The sporting public will find this system convenient and user friendly."

The system allows folks to call 1-800-ASK-FISH 24 hours a day, seven days a week and purchase a fishing or hunting license by using a Visa or MasterCard. A $3 service charge is applied to the price of the license.

The service is funded by the Sportfishing Promotion Council (SPC), a division of the American Sportfishing Association.

"A lot of the credit for this pioneer project can be attributed to the tax dollars provided by the Sportfish Restoration Fund," said Joe Kuti, president of SPC.

Kuti added that the project, which is a joint effort between private industries, state and federal agencies, will catapult Mississippians into the 21st century.

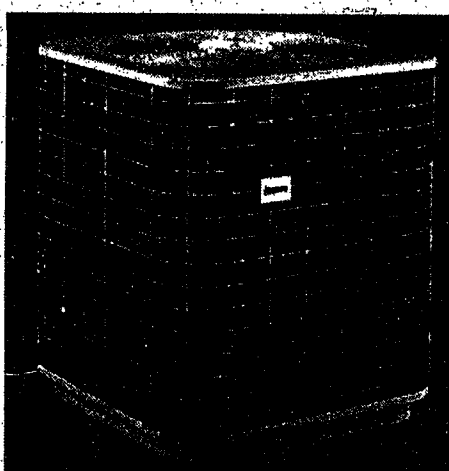

"It's an affordable 'On Ramp' to the Information Super Highway that provides better service to the public," Kuti said. Folks can also call the toll-free number from anywhere in the country and get fishing information such as rules, regulations, fishing reports, what baits to use, handicap access and boat ramp accessibility.

"They are some of the most comprehensive reports I have ever listened to. Their importance to anglers is immeasurable," said Ron Garavelli, MDWFP chief of fisheries.
